

_____, a servant of Jesus Christ and brother of James... (1)

Jude identifies himself in relation to two people:

- Brother of _____ (Matt 13:55; Acts 12:17; 15:13; 21:18; 1 Cor 15:7; Gal 1:19; 2:9, 12; James 1:1), almost certainly a leader of the church in Jerusalem, and a half brother of _____ (Mark 3:20-21; Matt 12:46-50; John 7:1-6; 19:25-27)
- A " _____ " or "slave" (doulos)...
 - Following in the footsteps of _____ (Deut 34:5), Joshua (Josh 24:29), David (Psa 18), _____ (Luke 1:38), and _____ (Matt 12:18)
 - ...of Jesus _____. Why? What had changed? (Acts 1:3, 12-14)

To those who are _____, _____ in God the Father and _____ for Jesus Christ:

May mercy, peace, and love be _____ to you. (Jude 1-2)

The recipients of Jude's letter are described in three ways, and all three descriptions show up in the Servant Songs of Isaiah (42:1-9). Coupled with the last two verses (24-25) of Jude's letter...

Now to him who is able to _____ you from stumbling and to present you _____ before the presence of his glory with great _____, to the only God, our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, dominion, and _____, before all time and now and forever. Amen.

...we're provided a Spirit-shaped mirror in which to see ourselves as the latest in a long line of _____.

- "I am _____."
- "I am _____."
- "I am _____."
